Barry Rhodes and Samantha Smeaton

Directions from Malaga Airport

Assuming you have travelled by plane to Malaga and hired a car, you have a pleasant 2 hour drive ahead of you. The following route is the quickest using a newly upgraded road, the A357.

After leaving the airport you will need to join the N340 briefly in the direction of Granada and Motril but you need very shortly to look for a sign pointing in the direction of Cartama that will slip you onto the A357. From then it's easy driving on a good road, passing Cartama and carrying on to meet the A382 at Campillos where you head West taking signs for Jerez de la Frontera. It's now about another 35 miles to Algodonales. You can tell when you're about to arrive there because you will drive through a tunnel going uphill (just past the Southern landing field!) and immediately you exit this be on the look out for the slip road into Algodonales. Head straight into the Town Square and we'll see you shortly. The total journey is around 80 miles or 130 kilometres –see maps printable from website.
